Dear Dr. Gaddis:

I am writing to convey enormous thanks for your presentation, "Change Your Inner-tude, Change Your Life" and to let you know how very well it was received.

You are getting rave reviews here, as I'm sure you are accustomed to. Adjectives describing your presentation range from "excellent" to "awesome" - - that from the author of the remark about gossip and negativity being like riptides which will pull an unsuspecting swimmer underneath the waves of an otherwise beautiful shoreline, if he is not careful. It is very important to hear that positive and negative viewpoints are options which each individual is free to choose for himself.

Thank you so much for taking time from your schedule and agreeing to address our group. Your presentation was so power-packed with important things to consider and resolve to do and it was an energizing presentation at the same time. We are grateful to you for filling our morning with such substance and joy!!

We hope your flight home was uneventful. It would be our wish that many groups in the future would hear your presentation and receive similar benefits from the many important insights which you relate.

Thank you again.

Sincerely,

Karen Walbridge, C.P.M., CPPB
